Teen Camp 2012 Experiences Community

Jamey, Josh, Sarah, Caitlin, Hannah, Kassy, Luke & Pat, this year's high school seniors at Grad Party 2012. They each received a $25 scholarship off their camper fee and in return planned and led the water games, an annual event, and the games following evening services.

Supt Ron Balzer said it was fun, fast and fabulous hanging out with the grads during their Bible study time. "We learned together as we talked about our personal relationship with Christ and our journey towards holiness. Starting with Genesis, we dug into the doctrine of sin and then traveled along into the joy, power and love God gives as we obey."

Other helpers included Joe Shuffett, Claire Brown, Jalyn Wilson, Becca Tinsley, Tammy Balzer, Fay Tinsley, Tracy Higgins, Ruth Weinberger and Kasey Tinsley.

Eligibility for teen camp begins upon completion of the 7th grade and continues after high school by incorporating young adults into camp leaders. One of the grads said, "This has become my second family."

Andrea Tinsley is a product of growing up camping at Eagle Ridge. Now she is excited as she watches other young people doing the same thing and also emerging as conference leaders.

From spiritual formation groups and cabin devotions to water games and roller skating, teens from 9 churches played, prayed and learned together during the week of June 18 - 23.

Larry Anderson (right) from Central Christian College in McPherson, Kansas, returned for the second year as camp pastor. This year he brought a team of CCC students with him who led the music.

New South Conference Youth Director Andrea Tinsley was delighted seeing the Holy Spirit weave together a global view of the camp theme, "Love Without Limits." She said, "We saw how God is at work in many places through several campers' upcoming missions trip to Bulgaria, testimonies from the CCC students, and the addition of a missions focus to cabin devotions. Loving God with heart, soul, mind and strength is what He asks, and He showed what that means with Jesus' death on the cross. It's unlimited love to unlimited people."
